National Floriculture Forum 2018

The National Floriculture Forum (NFF) is an annual educational meeting for greenhouse growers, industry leaders, university faculty, graduate students and government scientists from academic institutions, governmental agencies and the greenhouse industry. This group of floriculturists have been meeting since 1999.

Longwood Gardens 2017

3-DAY CONFERENCE REGISTRATION: $150.00
LIMITED TO THE FIRST 100 REGISTRATIONS. DEADLINE: 02/01/18
REGISTER AT: HTTPS://NFF2018.EVENTBRITE.COM

The NFF brings together diverse floricultural communities with the objectives to:

- Address issues of importance to the floriculture industry,
- Form collaborative relationships and
- Improve communication within the American floriculture industry to share and disseminate information.

These meetings are one-of-a-kind and continue to bring members of the floriculture community together each year.

Floriculture refers to growers that produce the following types of flowers: orchids, bromeliads, mums, poinsettias, flowering bedding plants and cut flowers.

GRAD STUDENTS AND RESEARCHERS ARE INVITED TO PRESENT THEIR RESEARCH

The theme for the abstracts is Environmental Awareness and Urban Horticulture. There is time for eight, 15 minute presentations on Saturday morning during the business meeting.
